Corps of Engineers offers spring recreation opportunities on Boise River

BOISE, Idaho – Outdoors enthusiasts can enjoy spring at recreation facilities operated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Corps recreation planners invite the public to "play it safe" while having some warm-weather fun. Although above-water temperatures are becoming warmer, springtime water temperatures can be cold enough to cause swimmers to develop hypothermia – a severe lowering of core body temperature. State boating, hunting and fishing regulations apply to visitors at Corps sites. Hunting on Corps property is allowed in designated areas only. Boaters should ensure personal floatation devices are on board for each person – children 14 years of age and under must wear a U.S. Coast Guard approved PFD in all vessels under 19 feet in length while the vessel is under way.

Recreation areas associated with Walla Walla District's Lucky Peak Dam on the Boise River are scheduled to open as follows:

Contact information unless stated otherwise: Lucky Peak Dam and Lake. Telephone: (208) 343-0671.

Email: LuckyPeakLake@usace.army.mil.

All Lucky Peak parks are open. However, the current lake level does not allow convenient access to "boat-in" sites. Dam officials expect the lake to be near-full by Memorial Day, depending upon spring snowmelt and runoff levels.
